THEATRE STYLE

Theatre style seating is the most formal seating layout and it is ideal for large audience. It is designed for presentations or lectures where participants do not need to take notes. Participants are given a chair but are not seated at a table. All chairs face towards the front of the room.

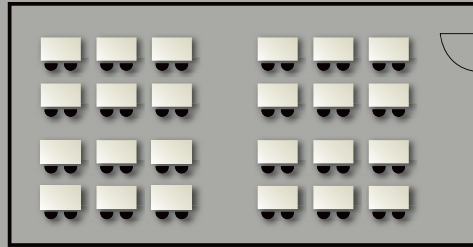

BANQUET STYLE

Banquet style is a seating arrangement designed for large group events such as ceremonial awards, galas and black-tie dinners. The delegates are seated around tables of 8 or 10 spaced evenly throughout the room with table settings and centrepieces. This seating style allows for more interaction.

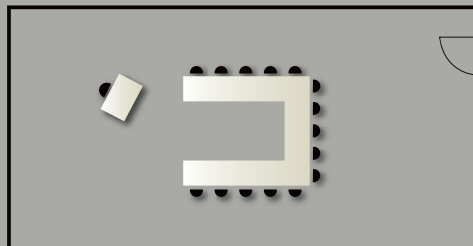

CLASSROOM STYLE

Classroom style seating is a seating arrangement designed for presentations, lectures, training courses and sales conferences where lots of note taking is required. Participants are seated on one side of the table allowing all participants to face towards the front of the room and have a place to rest their writing pads or PCs.

U-SHAPE STYLE

U-shape style is a sitting arrangement ideal for conferences, meetings, dinners or watching films. It works very well for presentations where there will be interaction, since the speaker can walk up and down the hollow box interacting with the guests. It also provides the participants a table on which to set any materials or meals.
